

How to Get Your GMRS License

If you're using GMRS (General Mobile Radio Service) communication devices, like UCLEAR's cutting-edge Rune Two-Way Radio, obtaining a GMRS license is a straightforward but essential step. The FCC requires this license for operation on GMRS frequencies to ensure a reliable and interference-free experience for all users. Here's everything you need to know to get started!

Why Do You Need a GMRS License?

The GMRS license allows you to legally use powerful two-way communication devices, offering extended range and superior clarity compared to unlicensed options. It's particularly beneficial for motorcyclists, off-road enthusiasts, and outdoor adventurers who rely on UCLEAR's Rune system to stay connected during their journeys.

Steps to Obtain Your GMRS License

- 1. Visit the FCC Website

Go to the FCC's Universal Licensing System \(ULS\) to apply for your GMRS license.

- 2. Create an FCC Username and Password

If you're a first-time applicant, register for an FCC account by obtaining an FCC Registration Number (FRN). This FRN will be your unique identifier for all FCC-related activities.

- 3. Log In to Apply (here)

Use your FRN and password to log in to the ULS portal. Select "Apply for a New License" and choose "ZA – General Mobile Radio Service" from the list of services.

- 4. Fill Out the Application

Provide your personal information, agree to the terms, and confirm your application details. The process is simple and only takes a few minutes.

- 5. Pay the Fee

The GMRS license costs $35 as of 2024. This fee covers your license for 10 years, and it includes coverage for your immediate family members.

- 6. Receive Your License

Once your payment is processed, your GMRS license will be issued electronically. You can download and print it directly from the ULS portal.

Key Benefits of a GMRS License

- Expanded Range: GMRS devices offer a significantly longer communication range than standard FRS radios.
- Private Communication: Operate on dedicated GMRS frequencies for less interference.

- Family Coverage: A single license covers all members of your household.
